Medical Education Grants

Keryx supports high-quality, balanced and scientifically rigorous Medical Education including accredited and non-accredited Continuing Medical Education (CME) programs and/or materials. Programs and/or materials must be free from commercial influence or bias, and conducted in accordance with the PhRMA Code, ACCME guidelines and all other applicable laws and guidance.

Examples of programs that Keryx may support through a scientific or educational grant include: support for a third-party professional society meeting, continuing medical education (CME), and the development of patient education materials. However, Keryx will not support expenses associated with food or beverages at accredited CME programs. Grants will not be awarded to support an institution's normal business expenses.
